I've had problems with the frontend program as well (SpamAssassin), so I'm going to install Cppcheck and make sure that the problem is solved. If I find any issues with it, I'll post here. SpamAssassin is a command-line email filtering utility that prevents the delivery of email messages to certain mail folders. Unlike some other programs of its kind, it focuses more on email threats than on annoying users, and was originally created for the Debian GNU/Linux distribution. It is free and open-source software, licensed under the terms of the GNU General Public License version 2. Thanks for the interest in our Cppcheck! We really appreciate it. Yeah, no problem. When you said, "Why would anyone want to check their code?" I kind of assumed it was already done. It's quite an easy tool, so I figured it was probably already done. The real issue with this is that anyone interested would have to find it for themselves, as there's no big list of companies that use it. You're helping people (not by a long
